

Light at the end of the tunnel?

Michael Page's annual global survey of financial services and banking employees was conducted in April 2014, more than 3,300 people participated

This year's survey confirmed the continued negative impact of the financial crisis on working conditions

2/3 of people believe the prolonged economic crisis has affected work conditions

7/10 people have had to take on responsibility for areas outside their normal job

8/10 people take fewer bonuses, pay rises and opportunities for promotion

6/10 people have had to work longer hours

But there was a more positive outlook for the future of the sector

58%

of respondents think the financial sector will see positive growth during the next 12 months

27%

of people are expecting flat growth

are expecting a decline
